Questions 51 – 55 carry 10 marks each

51. Read the passage below carefully in full sentences answer the questions that follow.

In the village of Bula, Wanko subcounty in Busia district, grief haunted everyone when a prominent elder died. Mourning and endless screams became the order of the day for the folks for over a fortnight due to the loss of such great man in their area.

Late Wafula, once a hardworking and longtime serving District Education officer was famous for his love for education. The news of his death spread like bush fire all over the region, attracting a number of mourners from near and far. His death came after a long illness in Kawolo Hospital and his body was brought to his ancestral home on a Saturday evening. He was to be laid to rest the day after.

Condolence messages came in from all over the region. An organization, Uganda Funeral Services presided over the burial ceremony. At his burial, speakers commended the good things he had done during his life time. Late Wafula was survived by two widows and six children of whom the eldest was his only son. After the burial, the family members gathered to discuss the funeral rites ceremony.

The following Saturday was chosen for the ceremony. Two bulls were slaughtered for the event. The ceremony was characterized with a lot of drinks, dancing and merry-making. This was done to wish the deceased eternal peace and to send him off to another life.

Examination! Examination!
What a great king you are!
With powers all over Ugandan schools
With your palace in Ntinda

UNEB workers sleeplessly planning
Teachers restlessly preparing candidates
Candidates worn out revising
All parents on their knees
Poor handwriting, a sin
Poor memory, harmful and dangerous
Absenteeism is very wrong
Cheating, a crime

Doctors depend on your science
Engineers use your maths
Journalists speak your English
And talkative politicians depend on your social studies
